TEACHING EXPERIENCE

9/02 – Present      Assistant Professor, Yale University

Description:      Providing primary instruction for a senior undergraduate/graduate course on Addictive Behaviors, two lower level undergraduate courses; Introduction to Clinical Psychology course (Spring) and Statistics in Psychological Science (Fall), and one core graduate course; Health Psychology. The Addictive Behaviors seminar has an enrollment of 15-20 and includes sections on epidemiology and classification, etiology, and prevention and treatment of alcohol and other drug use disorders. The Introduction to Clinical Psychology course has an enrollment of approximately 80 students and includes sections on history of the field, assessment and testing, psychotherapy, and areas of specialization within clinical psychology. The statistics course has an approximate enrollment of 150 and covers topics including the normal distribution, confidence intervals, hypothesis testing, ANOVA, regression and correlation, and non-parametric statistics. Health psychology is a core graduate course in the clinical area covering the role of psychological processes in health and disease, health risk and health protective behaviors, and psychological intervention targeting physical health outcomes.

8/00 – 5/02      Instructor, University of Texas at Austin

Description:      Providing primary instruction for an upper division Introduction to Clinical Psychology course with an approximate enrollment of 110 students.

5/97 - 5/99      Graduate Instructor, University of Georgia

Description:      Providing primary instruction for a course on the Psychology of Adjustment including topics such as stress and coping, physical health, employment, and psychological disorders.

RESEARCH MENTORING AND CLINICAL SUPERVISION

Research Mentoring

9/02 – Present      Supervision of graduate students, undergraduate research assistants, and post-doctoral fellows, Yale University

Description:      Supervision of three graduate students and one post-doctoral fellow in clinical psychology. Supervision of research team meetings which include graduate and undergraduate students (average of 6 per year) and other staff. Supervision of weekly data collection in a simulated bar laboratory. Supervision of honor's theses for an average of 3-4 students per academic year. Preparation of conference presentations and manuscripts for publication based graduate and post-doctoral independent research and undergraduate senior theses.

7/99 – 6/02      Supervision of graduate and undergraduate research assistants, University of Texas at Austin

Description:      Direct supervision of data collection in a simulated bar laboratory with three graduate students and six to eight undergraduate students. Leading of weekly research team meetings and discussion of scientific research. Working with graduate students on coauthored presentations and publications. Supervision of an undergraduate honors thesis, including co-authorship on a conference presentation and manuscript.

Clinical Supervision

8/98 - 5/99      Clinical Practicum, University of Georgia

Description:      Provided supervision for first year graduate students, including one-on-one supervision, review of taped sessions, and leading group practicum meetings.

Supervisor:      Lily D. McNair, Ph.D.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Supervised Postdoctoral Clinical Hours toward Licensure

8/99 - 8/00                      Counseling Center, University of Texas

Description:                      Conducted assessments for substance abuse and dependence. Brief motivational enhancement therapy. Provided recommendations to referring therapists and referrals to community services when warranted.

Supervisor:                        Jeff Kulley, Ph.D.
